Winners and losers in May

The ongoing impact of stimulus and the easing in lockdowns reinforced the rally over May. Cyclical sectors that had been battered, particularly energy, catapulted back from historic lows. The median total share price return from investment companies was 3.1% (it was 8.5% in April) – year-to-date they are still down (14.5%).

Please refer to the ‘appendix’ section for a comprehensive list of sector-specific performance. Readers interested in the most recent briefings from the industry can click here to access our economic and political roundup.

The growth capital sector has been the fourth-best performer this year, in share price terms (see ‘Appendix 1’). It provides access to unlisted, early, through to late-stage, technology and biotech companies. Japan’s relative success in navigating through the pandemic, and the significantly higher levels of cash held by corporates, has caught the eye of foreign investors. At the other end of the scale, there was no let-up for aircraft leasers, while private equity has not been participating in the rally (we discuss why in the following section).

Adoption of many of the 'disruptive' technologies Augmentum Fintech invests in, could speed-up as a result of the pandemic. Golden Prospect Precious Metals had another strong month, with increasing demand for gold. Biotech Growth's shares are up over 50% since April – investors are hopeful its portfolio contains the company that will develop the vaccine, find the cure and/or alleviate the symptoms of COVID-19. The fact that Bernie Sanders will not be the next US President has lifted sentiment too. European stocks joined the party over May, delivering their best May returns since 2009. The restarting of economies and stimulus measures benefitted growth-focused funds like Montanaro European Smaller Companies and Baillie Gifford European Growth, in particular. The price of Brent Crude oil increased by over 80%, which was very good news for the two Riverstone funds (Riverstone Energy and Riverstone Credit Opportunities Income). Over half of Edinburgh Worldwide's portfolio is invested in healthcare and technology, two of the most Covid-19 friendly sectors. Leasing fund, SQN Asset Finance Income, has been one of the worst performers since March, with many of its counterparties heavily impacted. Turning sentiment created a value opportunity, pushing the shares up nearly 50%. The direct lender, VPC Specialty Lending, has been coping well – most of its lending is to US consumers. It says that requests for payment relief have been tailing-off.

NB Distressed wrote down its Exide Technologies investment. DP Aircraft 1 was forced to take equity in Norwegian Air Shuttle in place of its leases. The leasing sector has had by far the worst year so far (see 'Appendix 1'). So long as aircraft remain grounded, the airlines will require ongoing state-support. The prospect of social distancing at universities next year will do little to entice new international students, hurting sentiment towards GCP Student Living and Empiric Student Property. May saw a 93% y-o-y decline in gaming revenues in Macau, pulling down Macau Property Opportunities's NAV. Elsewhere, private equity funds have not been participating in the rally – the median total market return of the sector over the year-to-date to end-May was (23.7%), BMO Private Equity had the worst month. The pandemic will delay exits, with return expectations materially re-adjusted. Many PE-backed companies in Europe have not been able to access state support, as a result of their heavily geared capital structures. Crystal Amber's discount widened. Majedie's relatively higher weight in energy, compared to some of its global peers, has weighed on its performance. JPMorgan Indian's NAV and shares declined over May. India implemented one of the most stringent lockdowns and the economic legacy in India will be severe. Furthermore, the stimulus announced in May appears to be less helpful in boosting aggregate demand than had initially been hoped.

Electra Private Equity's shares increased by 43% over May – by far the sector's best return, though it remains one of the worst performers over the year. The re-opening of TGI Fridays restaurants over the coming weeks, one of its two-main holdings, attracted buyers. CVC Credit Partners European Opportunities has not suspended dividends, like other debt funds. Growth Capital-sector fund, Merian Chrysalis, holds a number of tech-focused 'disrupters.' Schroder UK Public Private has also been recovering ground of late, helped by its healthcare tilt and the placing of the stock held by Woodford's open-ended funds.

Commercial property-focused Drum Income Plus REIT is having a tough time – it reported a huge NAV decline for the first quarter. Henderson Euro's discount spiked out briefly and has narrowed again in June. Brunner lost its well-liked manager. Somewhat peculiarly, North American Income's discount widened to a post-pandemic period peak over May, before narrowing again. The fund's dividend is fully covered and US equity income funds have not been hit to the same extent, as UK equivalents, by companies halting distributions. Middlefield Canadian Income's relatively high exposure to energy and real estate is largely behind its widening discount.

GCP Infrastructure

Rebased dividend

GCP Infrastructure will be 10 years old in a few weeks. Since 2012, it has paid a stable 7.6p per year dividend backed largely by UK public sector cashflows and achieved modest growth in net asset value (NAV). The yield premium that GCP delivers relative to UK government debt securities has increased significantly over the past decade (see page 2).

GCP's board wants to ensure that the company's next decade is as successful as the last. That has meant reassessing the fund's objectives and risk tolerances. The board has determined that, following an extensive review of the sustainability of the dividend, the company will target a dividend of 7.6p from 1 October 2020.

Public sector-backed, long-term cashflows from loans used to fund UK infrastructure

GCP aims to provide shareholders with regular, sustained, long-term distributions and to generate capital over the long term by generating exposure primarily to UK infrastructure debt and related and/or similar assets which provide regular and predictable long-term cashflows.

GCP primarily targets investments in infrastructure projects with long term, public sector-backed, availability-based revenues. Where possible, investments are structured to benefit from partial inflation-protection.

India Capital Growth

Needs more time

India Capital Growth's (IGC's) board is asking investors to back a continuation vote scheduled for 12 June 2020 and it is important that shareholders make their vote count. COVID-19 has depressed valuations to levels not seen since the financial crisis. The managers see substantial upside when market confidence returns and are asking for more time to deliver that. The board believes shareholders should support the continuation of the company. This reflects their confidence in the measures taken to turn performance around, which we discuss in this note. When small and midcap valuations return to trading at long-term average valuations, IGC's share price could improve meaningfully.

India's response to the COVID-19 outbreak has been robust and this will have serious economic consequences. This has triggered a further leg down in the Indian market. A stimulus package of up to $206bn announced on 12 May should help stimulate a long-awaited recovery.

In a response to the reversal of fortune that IGC has experienced over the last couple of years, the adviser has strengthened its team and refined its investment approach. Shareholders that give IGC the benefit of the doubt will have the comfort of a full exit opportunity in December 2021.

Mid- and small-cap listed investments in India

IGC's investment objective is to provide long-term capital appreciation by investing (directly or indirectly) in companies based in India. The investment policy permits the company to make investments in a range of Indian equity securities and Indian equity-linked securities. The company's investments are predominantly in listed mid- and small-cap companies.

Henderson High Income Trust

Able to commit to the dividend

Recent market falls have left Henderson High Income Trust (HHI) trading on a 7.3% dividend yield. This is a significant premium to the yield on the UK market, which has been hit by a swathe of dividend cuts. The board are well aware of the reliance that many investors have on the income paid by the trust. Fortunately, HHI's sources of revenue are diversified (as we explain on page 4) and it had revenue reserves of 8.3p per share at the beginning of the year. Given this, the board felt confident enough to announce their intention to maintain the quarterly dividend at 2.475p for the remainder of the trust's financial year ended 31 December 2020.

High income from a diverse UK equity income portfolio

HHI invests in a prudently diversified selection of both well-known and smaller companies to provide investors with a high income stream while also maintaining the prospect of capital growth. Gearing (derogating) is used to enhance income returns, and also to achieve capital growth over time. A portion of gearing is usually invested in fixed interest securities, which helps dampen the overall volatility of the trust's returns.

For investors reliant on income, the renewable infrastructure sector offers some sense of security. JLEN Environmental Assets Group's (JLEN's) diverse portfolio and predictable long-term revenue stream provides some additional reassurance.

JLEN Environmental Assets

Reliable source of income

It is hard to gauge the true extent of the damage that the pandemic is inflicting on the global economy, but already many companies have been forced to reduce or suspend dividends. For investors reliant on income, the renewable infrastructure sector offers some sense of security. JLEN Environmental Assets Group's (JLEN's) diverse portfolio and predictable long-term revenue stream provide some additional reassurance.

For the moment, attention has shifted away from the long-term climate-related threats that face us, but this issue has not gone away. JLEN is playing its part in helping to reduce carbon emissions and tackle waste. In December 2019, JLEN further diversified its portfolio, with an investment in a food waste collection and processing business. It continues to build the agricultural anaerobic digestion side of its business, most recently with an investment in Scotland. JLEN still has considerable resources available to it to continue to grow and further diversify its portfolio.

Progressive dividend from investment in environmental infrastructure assets

JLEN aims to provide its shareholders with a sustainable dividend, paid quarterly, that increases progressively in line with inflation. It also aims to preserve the capital value of its portfolio on an inflation-adjusted basis over the long term. It invests in environmental infrastructure assets with predictable, wholly or partially index-linked cash flows, supported by long-term contracts or stable regulatory frameworks.

Polar Capital Technology

Confidence building

After a brief period of extreme volatility in stock markets related to the coronavirus COVID-19 outbreak, confidence is returning in the technology sector. Shareholders seem to appreciate that the sector is well-placed to weather the disruption caused by measures that are being used to fight the pandemic. Polar Capital Technology Trust (PCT), buoyed by its strong track record, is attracting the attention it deserves. It has seen its discount eliminated and is issuing shares to meet investors' demand.

The well-resourced management team, led by Ben Rogoff, has identified a number of themes that it believes will continue to drive market-beating returns from the trust. The take-up of some of these is being accelerated by the current situation. With income returns on offer from many other investment types, an actively managed and diversified portfolio of technology stocks offers one of the few paths to achieving genuine long-term growth.

Global growth from tech portfolio

PCT aims to maximise long-term capital growth through investing in a diversified portfolio of technology companies around the world, diversified across both regions and sectors within the overall investment objective to reduce investment risk.

Vietnam Holding Limited

Early mover advantage

The covid-19 pandemic is having a devastating impact on the global economy and, while they have recovered from their lows, financial markets remain depressed. Emerging markets have been at the sharp end of these moves but Vietnam, which was quick and tenacious in its response to the outbreak of the virus, is a bright spot in these otherwise difficult times.

Dynam Capital, the manager of Vietnam Holding (VNH), says that the authorities' response to the virus is allowing Vietnam to exit from lockdown earlier than most countries and that it is well positioned to respond should a second wave occur. Most Vietnamese factories were able to stay open. Cross-border trade with China, its largest supplier, is recovering and should continue to grow. With very supportive long-term structural growth drivers, cheap valuations and a wider than average discount to net asset value (NAV), now may be a good entry point for investors who can look through the volatility and are prepared to be patient.

Capital growth from a concentrated portfolio of high growth Vietnamese companies

VNH aims to provide investors with long-term capital appreciation by investing in a portfolio of high-growth companies in Vietnam. These should come at an attractive valuation and demonstrate strong environmental, social and corporate governance awareness. It achieves this by investing primarily in publicly-quoted Vietnamese equities, but it can also invest in unlisted companies and can hold the securities of foreign companies if a majority of their assets and/or operations are based in Vietnam.

Aberdeen Standard European Logistics Income

Resilient to covid-19

The logistics sector, in which Aberdeen Standard European Logistics Income (ASLI) invests, would appear to be one of the few property sectors that could see occupier demand increase in the long term as a result of the coronavirus pandemic. With some form of a lockdown enforced in most European countries, there has been a spike in ecommerce orders. A whole new group of people have been introduced to online retailing, which is expected to speed up penetration rates across Europe and reinforce long-term systemic changes in the logistics sector.

ASLI has built a portfolio of 14 assets since it launched in December 2017. These are focused on a mix of big box and urban logistics warehouses in established logistics locations in five different European countries. As ecommerce and logistics companies look to drive efficiencies across their supply chains, demand for logistics assets in locations close to major cities is forecast to grow.

Big box and urban logistics in Europe

ASLI invests in a diversified portfolio of 'big box' logistics and 'last mile' urban warehouse assets in Europe with the aim of providing its shareholders with a regular and attractive level of income return (achieving a 5% yield on its IPO price in 2019) together with the potential for long-term income and capital growth (target total return of 7.5% a year in euros).
